What are cookies? A "cookie" is a small piece of information sent by a web server to store on a web browser so it can later be read back from that browser. This is useful for having the browser remember some specific information.

Do Cookies make you machine slow:

No - unless you have thousands of them. More info here:

Question?:- I want to clean the cookies from my machine:

Try ccleaner: <http://www.ccleaner.com/> and follow the tour. I have it installed, and I run it regularly. In the tour it tells you how to run it. Please note, we do not support this application.

Otherwise:

Delete Cookies in Internet Explorer

How to delete cookie files:

Open Internet Explorer and click on the "Tools" menu.

In the "Tools" menu, click on "Internet Options".
The Internet Options pop-up window appears.
Under the General Tab select the "Delete Cookies" button.
Delete cookies by clicking "OK".

Optional:

Select the "Delete Files" button to clear the Internet cache. Make sure to check the box to "Delete all offline content".
Delete temporary Internet file history data by selecting "Clear History"

Once registered - have you received your email?

Once you have registered a email is sent to the email address provided. The email is titled:

"LyneFC - Your Registration is Pending Approval"

So, please check your junk/spam folders as it can get trapped in there.

In AOL, this does go into your "SPAM" folder. I have confirmed and tested this by registering myself and sending to an aol email address. I then logged into my aol email account via Internet Explorer to the address:

<http://webmail.aol.com/>

And the email was in my SPAM folder.

To get the emails not to be classed as spam, I have done a separate document on it:

http://www.lynefc.com/lynefc/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=24&Itemid=2

If you are still having trouble after this, please email me at scott@lynefc.co.uk and I will assist.
